— MANAGE IT – DON'T RISK IT —

Managing IT in business used to be a bit like becoming a new parent – someone with a glimmer of computer knowledge was assumed to have all the required skills and became the expert ‘go-to’ person for all in-house technical support. For something a little more serious this person could get help from their local IT company and fingers crossed all would be good again until the next outage! Sounds simple enough and when computers were little more than a PC hooked to a printer, well it kinda worked.

IT is complex and too important to rely on one person today. There are too many considerations – PCs, servers, networks, backups, security, Internet, websites, viruses and spam - the list goes on and on. Even if you are fortunate enough to find someone with reasonably comprehensive IT skills, it remains that one person simply cannot be competent across all the technologies that even one small office requires.

Can your business afford to RISK IT to just anyone?

A fully Managed Service is the answer! Passing the management and responsibility of your IT to OPC that employs over 200 years of expertise in IT will guarantee your peace of mind. OPC and has been providing tailored, fully managed ICT and web services to large and small organisations throughout the ACT and Australia wide for over 10 years.

OPC can take the hard work out of managing your IT requirements and allow you to get on with what you do best - your business. By incorporating all facets of ICT, OPC can provide a single end-to-end fully managed IT solution, reliably and consistently.
